

To Whom it May Concern,

Karl Mecklenberg recently spoke at our Father's Day Weekend Services and exceeded all of our expectations leading into the weekend. His broad appeal and incredible resume was only surpassed by his personal preparation, depth of character and comfort on our stage with lots of moving pieces involved.

From the first point of contact to the event he was clear and flexible in any area where we needed him to adjust for our context. His personal stories were incredibly compelling and he shared them with deep authenticity as well as the lessons he learned from them and the ways he hopes others can too.

This was an important weekend for us and Karl did a phenomenal job. After each service he was available for pictures and autographs and provided such a great generational connection point for families on this special day.

We would not hesitate to invite Karl to speak again and I'd encourage anyone looking for an inspirational figure that lives what he shares to do the same.

With Gratitude,

Phil EuBank
